3. Context and rationale

At Abbey School we are aspirational for all of the young people that we support. Our vision is that all children with exceptional needs receive a meaningful and fulfilling education that enables them to make their own choices about the direction of their adult lives. We are committed to ensuring that the physical, emotional and social needs of all our children are met within our school environment and support the development of children's health and well-being, self-esteem and confidence. Our school vision and ethos are strongly supported through, and embedded in, the delivery of our PSHE curriculum.

PSHE education helps to equip pupils with the knowledge, skills and understanding they need to live confident, healthy, independent lives and to become informed, active, responsible citizens. At Abbey School we feel that it is our responsibility to promote the personal and social development of all our pupils in a systematic way, through the delivery of our PSHE curriculum. We believe that PSHE education:

- Prepares pupils to live their 'best lives' - both now and in the future.
- Is a planned, developmental programme of learning through which our pupils acquire the knowledge, understanding and skills they need to manage their lives.
- Develops the qualities and attributes pupils need to thrive as individuals, family members and members of society.
- Helps in reducing, or removing, many of the barriers to learning experienced by our pupils, significantly improving their capacity to learn, achieve and raise aspirations;
- Makes a significant contribution to pupils' spiritual, moral, social and cultural (SMSC) development, their behaviour and safety and our statutory responsibility in promoting their well-being.
- Contributes to pupils' careers education through exploration of career paths and meaningful encounters with employers.
- Makes an essential contribution to the safeguarding of our pupils.

4. Safe and supportive learning environments

When setting up any lesson that deals with potentially sensitive subjects, it is essential to begin by creating a safe, secure learning environment. This helps children feel confident to share their ideas, values and attitudes without fear of negative feedback from their peers. A safe learning environment with clear boundaries also helps teachers to manage discussions on sensitive issues with greater confidence. At Abbey School we create a safe learning environment for pupils by linking PSHE and emotional health and well-being into the whole-school approach to supporting pupil welfare and safety.

We ensure that ground rules/class agreements reflect the school's wider policies and practice in relation to managing sensitive issues. Staff should be aware of and sensitive to the needs and experiences of individual children that may have direct experience of some of the issues being covered and will provide information to children about how they can get help and support both in school and outside, as appropriate. We aim to depersonalise discussions by using distancing techniques such as stories, drama, role-play, scenarios of real situations but with fictional characters and storylines.

5. Entitlement and equality of opportunity

We recognise the right for all pupils to have access to PSHE education and learning which meets their needs, thus PSHE is at the centre of the Abbey School mission to provide the best education possible for young people with exceptional needs. PSHE content is taught in accordance with pupils' age, ability and readiness and reflects the universal needs shared by all children and young people as well as the specific needs of Abbey School pupils. All pupils receive personalised access to the PSHE curriculum, supported by individualised learning support. We promote the needs and interests of all pupils, by ensuring that each pupil, irrespective of gender, culture, ability or personal circumstance is supported to be physically, emotionally and socially healthy.

6. Principles and methodology

We acknowledge that many pupils with autism and learning difficulties will present with significant barriers to their learning associated with their diagnosis. Although each pupil's learning needs are individual, and as such will be individually assessed, there are some common areas of good practice that pupils with autism and/or severe learning difficulties will benefit from. These should be routinely considered in the planning and teaching of PSHE.

At Abbey School we aim to:

- Make learning opportunities concrete and real
- Supplement teaching with visual aids e.g. videos, props, photographs, pictures, symbols, objects etc. and avoid ambiguous language
- Reinforce messages and provide plenty of opportunities for generalisation, keeping language simple and consistently using agreed vocabulary throughout the school
- Provide pupils with specific explanations and don't presume they will make links e.g. between a behaviour and emotion
- Encourage pupils to make choices and express their feelings

7. Resourcing

Our PSHE resources are carefully chosen and checked regularly for:

- Inclusivity
- Positive, healthy and unbiased messages
- Age appropriateness
- Promoting positive values
- Accuracy
- Being up-to-date

8. Planning

The PSHE curriculum offers both explicit and implicit learning opportunities and experiences. At Abbey School, PSHE is taught through a spiral programme, carefully informed and designed to address the following overarching concepts and skills set out in the PSHE Association's PSHE Education Planning Framework for pupils with SEND.

1. Identity (recognising their personal qualities, attitudes, skills, attributes and achievements and how these make them who they are; understanding and maintaining boundaries around their personal privacy—including online).
2. Relationships (different types and in different settings, including online and intimate relationships).
3. A healthy (physically, emotionally and socially) balanced lifestyle, (including within relationships, work- home-life, food, exercise and rest, spending and saving and lifestyle choices).
4. Risk (identification, assessment and how to manage risk, rather than simply the avoidance of risk, or trusting that others will take responsibility for managing risk) and safety (including behaviour strategies and communication skills to employ in different settings, including online).
5. Diversity & equality (in all its forms, with due regard to the protected characteristics set out in the Equality Act 2010).

6. Rights (including the notion of universal human rights; recognition and understanding of their rights), responsibilities (including fairness and justice) and consent (in a variety of contexts).
7. Change (as something which is experienced and can be managed) and resilience (the skills, strategies and 'inner resources' to draw on when faced with challenging changes or circumstances).
8. Power (how it is used and encountered in a variety of contexts, including online; how it manifests through behaviours including bullying, hurtful behaviour, persuasion, coercion and how it can be challenged or managed, including how and where to access support and help; that misuse of power is never their fault).
9. Economic well-being (including careers education, enterprise, employability and economic awareness), identifying future aspirations and understanding the purpose of goal setting.

9. Programme of study

Our PSHE programme of study contains four strands:

- Online Safety
- Relationships and Sex
- Living in the Wider World
- Health and Well-being

9.1. Online safety

Through the online-safety strand of the PSHE curriculum, pupils are taught rules and principles for staying safe online, including how to recognise risks, harmful content and contact and how to report them and seek help. Pupils consider the distinction between public and private and learn rules about what is and isn't safe to post or share online. Pupils are taught that people sometimes behave differently online, including by pretending to be someone they are not. They learn that the same principles apply to online relationships as to face-to-face relationships, including the importance of respect for others online including when we are anonymous. As pupils get older, they explore their rights, responsibilities and opportunities online. They learn that any material they post or share has the potential to be shared online and that material shared online can be very difficult or impossible to remove. Pupils learn they should not provide material to others that they would not want shared further and not to share personal material which is sent to them.

Please refer to our Online Safety Policy for further details.

9.2. Relationships and Sex Education

From September 2020 the Department for Education made Relationships Education compulsory in all primary schools in England and Relationships and Sex Education (RSE) compulsory in all secondary schools, as outlined in Relationships Education, Relationships and Sex Education \(RSE\) and Health Education.

At Abbey School, RSE is taught within the personal, social, health and economic (PSHE) curriculum, with the basic biological aspects of sex education taught within the science curriculum. Through the science curriculum, pupils will learn that:

- Animals including humans have offspring that grow into adults
- Humans and animals have lifecycles which include reproduction
- From birth to old age, humans change and special changes occur during puberty

RSE focuses on teaching the fundamental building blocks and characteristics of positive relationships and on giving young people the information they need to help them develop healthy, nurturing relationships of all kinds, including the following areas of learning:

- Families and people who care for me
- Respectful relationships, including friendships
- Online relationships
- Being safe
- Intimate and sexual relationships, including sexual health

RSE topics address cover five stages. Stages one to three are taught in each key stage, with stages four and five introduced from Key Stage four onwards. As with all areas of the curriculum, careful consideration will always be given to pupils' individual starting points, age and stage of development, readiness and personal circumstances.

Stage 1 – Knowing your own body

Stage 2 – Recognising exploitation

Stage 3 – Gender concepts and growing up

Stage 4 – How babies are made

Stage 5 – Contraception and sexual health

Please refer to our Relationships and Sex Education Policy for further details of our RSE curriculum.

9.3. Living in the Wider World

This strand of the PSHE curriculum makes a significant contribution towards pupils' spiritual, moral, social and cultural development and towards the promotion of the fundamental British values. Within this strand, pupils learn that they belong to different groups including those in school, at home and in the wider community, and differences and similarities between members of different groups are celebrated. Pupils learn about their rights and responsibilities and those of others. They explore rules and how rules keep people safe and protected. Pupils explore topical issues such as recycling and care of the environment and they consider the impact their choices and actions can have on the environment. Pupils learn about the role that money plays in their own and others lives and they develop practical skills related to the management of money.

Please refer to our SMSC (including British Values) Policy for further details.

It is important to note that our PSHE curriculum is not fixed; it is evolving and is designed to be amended, changed and added to, to ensure it matches the real, and changing needs of all our pupils.

9.4. Health & Wellbeing

The physical and emotional health and well-being of our pupils is fundamental to our philosophy and ethos at Abbey School and we place emotional well-being and mental health at the heart of our school to ensure successful learning and quality of life for all pupils. We have developed a bespoke well-being programme as part of our PSHE curriculum which is designed to teach pupils skills and strategies for maintaining positive mental health. The programme focuses on 'six ways to well-being' which are evidence-based strategies from the field of positive psychology that have been shown to boost mental well-being and develop emotional resilience. Through a spiral programme, we revisit the six ways to well-being, increase challenge, broaden scope and deepen pupils' thinking and understanding.

- Connecting with other people – good relationships help to build a sense of belonging and self-worth, give opportunity to share positive experiences and provide emotional support.
- Being physically active – being active is not only good for our physical health and fitness, it also raises self-esteem, helps us set and achieve goals or challenges and causes chemical changes in the brain which positively change our mood.

- Learning new skills – research shows that learning new skills boosts our self-confidence and raises self-esteem, helps us to build a sense of purpose and helps us connect with others.
- Giving to others – acts of giving and kindness create positive feelings and a sense of reward, give us feelings of purpose and self-worth and help us connect with others.
- Embracing the present moment – paying more attention to the present moment can improve our mental well-being by helping us enjoy life more and understand ourselves better, positively changing the ways we feel about life and how we approach challenges.
- Caring for ourselves – taking care of ourselves by eating healthily and resting well are an essential part of well-being.

Our well-being curriculum supports pupils to learn about and practise specific behaviours and activities linked to health and well-being, in an interesting, child-centred and age-appropriate way. Pupils are encouraged to practise the skills, strategies and activities, to see how they feel about them, and how useful they find them.

10. Timetabling

PSHE is most effective when taught through a spiral curriculum, a series of recurring themes which pupils experience each year. At each encounter, the level of demand increases and learning is progressively deepened depending on the unique needs of the pupil.

At Abbey School, PSHE is part of our core curriculum and is taught in weekly sessions using a spiral model. Discrete, dedicated curriculum time is allocated to teaching PSHE in order to deliver a meaningful, well-planned and developmental PSHE curriculum.

Our PSHE education takes place as weekly lessons throughout the school. In all key stages, depending upon the needs of individual pupils, teaching time may be broken into smaller sessions as appropriate rather than being delivered in entire hour-long lessons. In addition to regular, dedicated curriculum sessions, PSHE is enhanced through enrichment days and events.

Due to the developmental needs of the students and the nature of the topics covered in PSHE, especially in the relationships & sex education strand of the curriculum, PSHE is taught in year groups rather than following a rolling programme. This approach to structuring the PSHE curriculum ensures that important topics such as puberty are taught at the correct time, neither too early nor too late, to ensure pupils are prepared for the changes they will experience in good time. In contrast to this, the Wellbeing strand of the curriculum operates on a rolling programme in order to maximise links with topics being studied in classes as part of the wider curriculum.

11. Assessment

Assessment in PSHE education must be an integral part of teaching and learning. PSHE education covers issues and areas of life which pupils with SEND may be affected by in differing ways and at different times in their lives. Carrying out a baseline assessment activity at the beginning of each new topic will ensure that the subsequent learning is matched to pupils' individual needs and allow progress to be demonstrated or measured. It is especially important to be able to evidence the progress of pupils with SEND in order to identify future learning needs. For some pupils this may entail very small steps which are consolidated and reinforced by re-visiting their original learning. Other pupils may be able to progress more quickly and manage increasing levels of challenge. The most meaningful model of assessment in PSHE education, especially for pupils with SEND, is ipsative assessment—in which a pupil's own starting point is the benchmark against which progress is measured, not the performance of others or the requirements of an exam syllabus. This gives us the following model for assessing learning in PSHE education which we have adopted at Abbey School:

1. Baseline assessment

Carry out a baseline assessment before starting a new 'piece of learning' (which might be a single lesson or series of lessons constituting a 'module' or 'topic').

2. Assessment for Learning (Afl)

Build Afl into the lesson(s) to gauge understanding, adapt teaching, promote and maximise learning. Strategies might include building on the baseline assessment, structured questioning, mini-plenaries between activities, feedback and feed forwards.

3. Assessment of Learning (AoL)

At the end of the 'piece of learning', measure progress from the starting point (AoL). Use this to evidence progress and inform future teaching.

12. Teaching responsibility and staff training

Class teachers and learning mentors are responsible for the teaching of PSHE throughout the school using discrete lessons and other curriculum links:

- Delivering PSHE in a sensitive way
- Modelling positive attitudes to PSHE
- Monitoring progress
- Responding to the needs of individual pupils

Abbey School ensures PSHE training for staff through:

- Opportunities for the curriculum lead to undertake any training required to fulfil the position effectively
- CPD aligned to the whole school development plan for all staff involved in teaching the subject
- Consultation with staff with regard to RSE content and support required
- Visits from external agencies such as school nurses or sexual health professionals to provide support and training to staff teaching RSE where required

13. Confidentiality and handling disclosures

In the course of PSHE education lessons, pupils may indicate in some way that they are vulnerable or 'at risk'. Staff should be alert to the possible signs of abuse and where they have concerns that a pupil is vulnerable or at risk, they should always work within the school's policies on safeguarding and confidentiality.

Please refer to our Safeguarding Policy and Procedures for further guidance.

14. Responding to pupils' questions

At Abbey School, we believe it is important that where possible, pupils feel able to ask any questions that they wish and that their questions are valued. However, staff should give consideration to how to respond to questions, taking into consideration the prior learning and readiness of pupils. Staff members should seek advice from the curriculum lead if unsure about how to respond to a pupil's question and if a safeguarding concern is raised, staff members should adhere to the school's Safeguarding Policy and Procedures.

15. Promoting fundamental British values

As part of providing a broad and balanced PSHE curriculum through our agreed PSHE whole school approach, we are able to nurture and support the Spiritual, Moral, Social and Cultural development in young children and promote the fundamental British Values in young lives. We support children to become responsible citizens and to develop the knowledge, skills and understanding they need to lead safe, confident, healthy lives with the greatest degree of independence possible. We recognise that our school vision is crucial to this learning and should be at the heart of whole school development.

For further details, please refer to our SMSC (including British Values) Policy.

16. Links to other curriculum areas

As a school our aim is to embed PSHE in every aspect of school life, so as well as termly or half termly themes, PSHE is also delivered through a range of whole school activities including:

- Class assemblies
- Circle time
- Special themed weeks
- Whole school council
- School trips and residentials
- Fundraising events, e.g. Children in Need, Harvest
- Visitors to the school, e.g. local fire or police service
- Celebrating significant days, e.g. Remembrance Day
- Wider school day, e.g. form time, snack time, lunch time, morning / home routines

Effective provision of PSHE needs to include discrete teaching in order to ensure full coverage of the framework, however learning in PSHE is complemented through a variety of curriculum areas. The following subject links show where some of the PSHE objectives could be taught.

- English – skills in enquiry and communication, the use of stories illustrating aspects of PSHE.
- Mathematics – aspects of financial capability, counting and sharing.
- Science – drugs (including medicines), sex, health, safety and the environment.
- Religious Education – religious and moral beliefs, values and practices that underpin and influence personal and social issues and relationships.
- Physical Education – teaching and learning about health and safety, development of personal and social skills through team and individual activities, promotion of healthy lifestyles and the importance of exercise.
- Humanities – topical issues concerning the environment, study of own locality and the wider world, looking at reasons behind historical events, significant people, events, ideas and experiences of people from the past.
- Computing – communicating with others.
- Design and Technology – health and safety, healthy eating, use of technology, realising the needs of people through designs.
- Art and Design – reflecting on and responding to ideas and experiences communicated through works of art, craft and design from different times and cultures.
- Music – making the most of abilities in playing and singing, cultural diversity, expression.

17. Outside agencies

Occasionally, appropriate and suitably-experienced and knowledgeable visitors from outside school may be invited to contribute to the delivery of PSHE and Well-being at Abbey School. Staff should refer to the Health and Safety Policy regarding procedures for external visitors. Our 'Code of Practice' for visitors will ensure:

- Visitors are invited into school because of the particular expertise or contribution they are able to make.
- All visitors are familiar with and understand the school's PSHE policy and work within it.
- All input is part of a planned programme and negotiated and agreed with staff in advance.
- All visitors are supervised/supported by a member of staff at all times.
- The input of visitors is monitored and evaluated by staff and pupils, which will be used to inform future planning.

18. Involving parents and carers

At Abbey School we recognise that the involvement of parents and carers in their child's education is central to the progress of our pupils. As such, the school's relationship with parents and carers is considered as a partnership. Parents and carers are involved in discussions about their young person's learning and wellbeing at all stages of their time at Abbey School. There are regular formal and informal opportunities for parents and carers to engage with us as a school and to access a range of support and information. These include:

- Pupil reviews: These are termly opportunities to meet with the team of staff supporting the young person concerned. Reviews are used to share progress, achievements and concerns both at home and at school. They are also an opportunity to problem solve and share information on support strategies to ensure consistency for pupils across settings.
- Annual review: This is an annual pupil centred review of the Education Health and Care Plan. All of those inputting into a young person's education will form part of the review process. Progress and concerns will be considered and targets for the year ahead set and agreed.
- Home visits: A home visit can be requested or suggested in specific circumstances in which it would benefit the pupil and family. For example, if the family are struggling with behaviour at home or if a pupil is learning how to use a new communication system across settings.
- School events: We welcome parents and carers into school at various points throughout the year to celebrate our pupils' achievements. Examples include, fairs, assemblies, sports days and Christmas events.
- Home/school communication log: These books will come to and from school with each pupil containing key information that may be important to understand in order to effectively support the young person. For example, it is important for school staff to be aware of a lack of sleep or changes in routines at home that may be disruptive. Likewise, we recognise that many of our pupils are unable to come home and tell their family about their day, therefore, a few words about their school day is highly valued.
- Parent/carer communication App: In between more formal reviews, parents and carers are kept informed about their young person's progress via our School App that can be accessed on any smart phone or iPad. The App provides essential whole school information and is also used to provide personalised information to parents/carers regarding their child or young person. For example, photographs, progress reports and skills generalisation suggestions.

PSHE is strongest when there is communication and collaboration between school and home. We are committed to working with parents and carers and will involve them in reviewing our PSHE policy. We will communicate with parents prior to teaching RSE, informing them of their right to withdraw pupils from this aspect of the curriculum and we will arrange workshops for parents to view teaching materials and discuss the RSE and wider PSHE curriculum. We are happy to offer materials from relevant organisations that parent can use with their children at home should they desire.

19. Roles & Responsibilities

19.1. The Proprietor

The proprietor is accountable for all matters relating to the PSHE curriculum and delegates strategic and operational responsibility for overseeing the PSHE curriculum to the Principal and Senior Leadership Team.

19.2. The Principal

The Principal is responsible for strategic and operational matters in relation to the PSHE curriculum. The Principal and senior leadership team is responsible for ensuring that:

- This policy is adhered to.
- The required elements of the PSHE curriculum have aims and objectives which reflect the aims of the school and indicate how the needs of individual pupils will be met.
- The amount of time provided for teaching the required elements of the PSHE curriculum is adequate.
- Requests to withdraw children from aspects of the RS curriculum are managed where appropriate.
- Key aspects of the PSHE curriculum are reported to the Proprietor and Advisory Body.

19.3. The Advisory Body

The Advisory Body's role is to provide strategic support, challenge and accountability. The Advisory Body is responsible for:

- Being familiar with the school's PSHE policy.
- Holding school leaders to account for improving pupil and staff performance.

19.4. All Staff

All staff working with pupils are responsible for adhering to this policy.
